A MESSAGE FROM RABBI KAPLAN

Announcing a new course in September on the history, thought, culture, and society of the State of Israel

After spending five weeks in Israel, I've now been back in Arizona for several days. I was impressed and actually amazed to see changes that I witnessed in the state of Israel since I was a rabbinical student there almost three decades ago.

I started out in Tel Aviv and then was able to rent a car and travel around the country both North and South. After about a week traveling by car, I was able to spend a number of days in Jaffa just south of Tel Aviv. I was able to attend services in Jaffa at Beit Daniel. Rabbi Binyamin Minich leads the small congregation there. He graduated recently from the Hebrew Union College in Jerusalem and is also a PhD student at the Department of Jewish thought at Bar Ilan University in Ramat Gan. He invited me to meet him before services and took me down the row to a cafe where he treated me to delicious Israeli coffee and some small pastries. If you've been following my travels on my blog, you probably noticed that I've enjoyed tasting a lot of interesting Israeli foods. The pastries were certainly one of the highlights! Conversations are easy to strike up in Israel. While I haven't been able to use my Hebrew very much in Arizona, I found that I could still speak it as well as when I was living there. Most people are outgoing and willing to engage in dialogue. There was never any problem getting a conversation going and I was able to converse for as long as I wanted to. I learned a lot about the country and about the people who live in the state of Israel. The diversity was incredible.

Immediately upon my return, I spoke with Reva Litt, the chair of our adult education committee and we decided to put together a course that would feature the many photos that I took. It would also give me a chance to tell everyone about my impressions of the State of Israel 2022. A travelogue with culture and history sprinkled in, this 4 part series will be an opportunity for me to describe my recent trip to the holy land and to discuss Israeli society, economics and of course, religion. The series will start in early September. Look for a flyer with dates, times and registration information soon.

So here are just a few comments about the modern State of Israel I observed last month.

The first thing I had to do was to decide if I was a tourist or a religious pilgrim. A tourist is someone who goes to a country to see the sights because they're interesting and they want to have a good time. In contrast, a pilgrim goes in order to achieve a particular goal, whether it be religious or something else related to meaning. I was both a tourist and a pilgrim but clearly my primary purpose was to explore the Jewish meaning of the state of Israel. I enjoyed not only the food but the many places that I was able to see, but it was fundamentally different than visiting Mexico or Colombia or pretty much any other country in the world.

Israel is an economic powerhouse. There are all sorts of different studies but the one that I just saw places Israel's GDP as 20th in the entire world. Considering that Israel is such a small country that has had such a difficult history absorbing refugees from all over the world, and being attacked by its neighbors, that is nothing short of miraculous.

CONTINUED MESSAGE FROM RABBI KAPLAN

There was a book published about 10 years ago called Start-up Nation: the Story of Israel's Economic Miracle. One of the most interesting points in the book is how Israel transformed itself from a provincial and isolated Middle Eastern state in the 1970s to a thriving and technologically sophisticated country that it is today. Up until 1990, the authors write that the Israeli economy had a very limited capacity to capitalize on the entrepreneurial talent in the country. Further stifling the private sector was an extended hyperinflation. In 1985, then Finance Minister Shimon Peres implemented a stabilization plan developed by US Secretary of State George Shultz and International monetary fund Economist Stanley Fischer. This plan dramatically limited spending and reformed the government's role in the capital markets, thereby cutting public debt and stimulating the economy.

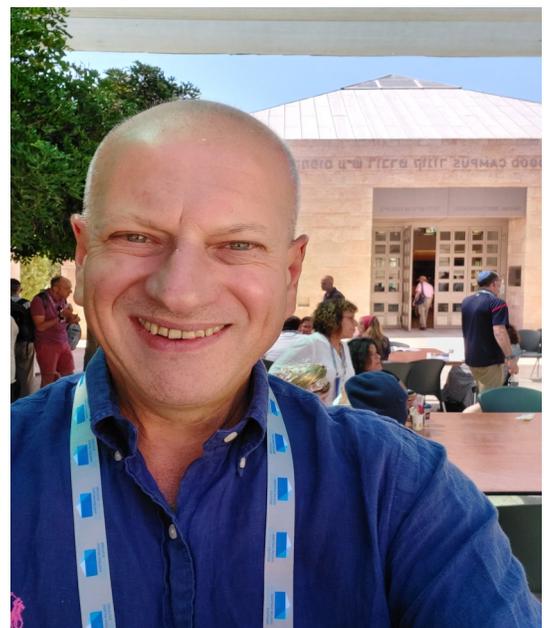

Just like here at home, I tend to avoid talking about politics and that was probably a good thing. Most Israelis are tired of talking about politics. There is also a strong sense that there are very limited possibilities for political change. Part of this is externally imposed: both the Israeli left-wing and right-wing do not see the Palestinians as being serious partners for any sort of long range political settlement. Therefore, there is no real point in debating what that political settlement might look like. Both the left-wing and right-wing see Iran as attempting to develop long-range missiles and nuclear weapons as part of a strategy to destroy the Jewish state. So there is not too much difference in practical policy even if the left wing and the right wing disagree on values and strategy.

I am certainly upset with the Orthodox control of religion. When I lived there, I found that many were hostile to me as a Reform Jew and a Reform rabbinical student. Unfortunately I still found that to be the case. But I was told clearly by my best friend there that if I was going to enjoy my visit to the Holy Land and be able to see the positive aspects of the country, I was going to have to put that aside. To a large degree I did, and I was very happy that I was able to do so. The country is amazing in so many ways and if I had studied to become an accountant or dentist I would have been able to live in the country very Happily.

I hope these few comments will be just enough to “whet your appetite” to hear more in the 4-week travelogue that we are planning for September. It will be called The State of Israel Today: Thought, Culture, Society, Music, History and Food

SUN CITY, AZ

NOTES FROM OUR CANTOR

Of all the days of the Jewish calendar, the saddest is Tisha B'Av. It has numerous disasters linked to its date. The two most prominent being the destruction of the First and Second Temples. There are five main prohibitions that are customary in its observance.

1. No eating or drinking (during its 25 hour timeframe)
2. No washing or bathing
3. No application of creams or oils
4. No wearing of leather, i.e. shoes
5. No intimate marital relations

As usual, my concerns are with music, and believe it or not, there is no prohibition in its practice. One must, of course, retain the solemnity of the day.

Psalms 137 supplies the lyrics to a song very much associated with Tisha B'Av, "Al Naharot Bavel:"

By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat and also wept when we remembered Zion. On the willows within it we hung our lyres. For there our captors requested words of song from us"

Another heart-wrenching song is, "Eli Tzion," poem and melody also sung during Mussaf on Yom Kippur:

"Cry, O Zion, and cities around her! Like a woman in labor whose birth pangs confound her and like a mournful newlywed bride crying over her groom who died.

Cry for the palace abandoned and forlorn because of the sins of the flock which she'd borne and for the arrival of the blasphemers that looms into the sanctuary of the Temple's rooms. Cry for the exile of the servants of God who'd sing songs, praise, and applaud and for their blood, spilled in barrels bursting forth like waters of her channels".

Who could eat after that anyway? Fortunately, Some of the songs are as graphic. "Am Yisrael Chai" has found a place on that day, as also did "Blessed is the Match (consumed in a Kindling Flame)". All things considered, what is most important is that we never forget the fragility of our beings and our core beliefs. We remember it was the breakdown of the relationship of the twelve tribes that propagated the eventual destruction of the Second Temple and, thus, the entire society which symbolized was no more. We should sing for our own remembrance, our personal dedication, and, most of all, for our gratitude for not being in captivity or exile. "Avinu Malkeinu," that perennial friend from the High Holy Days, is also sung:

Our Parent, Our Sovereign, be gracious and answer us, for we have little merit. Treat us generously and with kindness, and be our help."

We pray that the list of tragedies will never grow, and that our flock will continue to flourish. It is with that prayer, I continue to sing with hope and faith. Please sing with me!

MESSAGE FROM YOUR PRESIDENT

Fay Henning-Bryant

What is On Your Calendar for Friday Evening?

If you take a look at your calendar for the months of April, May, June, and through July 21st, 2022, I wonder what you will find written down for the sixteen Friday nights that fell during this time frame. Did you by any chance come to Shabbat services at Temple Beth Shalom...or perhaps join your fellow members by watching us on YouTube?

If your answer was “no”, I don’t ask this question to make anyone feel guilty. I ask it because I hope it will cause our members who haven’t joined us in worship for a while to realize what a joyous experience you are missing. We have a core group of about 40-50 members who come to Friday night services – with different degrees of regularity. Some come every week, others come once every few weeks – we don’t take attendance! But we have so many members who we never see...members who are missing a lot.

So, you say to me “I am tired when I get home from work...or from playing Mah Jongg...or from volunteering at the hospital and I don’t feel like going back out.” Or you may say, “I don’t like the Rabbi’s sermons” (for whatever reason). Or maybe you don’t know any Hebrew and you feel uncomfortable not being able to say a prayer or singing a song in Hebrew. Or, your spouse or partner is not Jewish and you don’t like coming alone to services. Or you joined the temple in the last three years or so, never had a chance to get involved before COVID hit us, so you’ve never had a chance to make any friends at TBS – you don’t like to come alone and not know anyone to sit with.

I’m not suggesting for one minute that these may not be good reasons. Before I retired, I was usually tired when I got home on Friday night and it was much easier to just stay home than drive the 12 miles back to the synagogue. I’ve been a member of a temple that I thought the Rabbi’s sermons weren’t the best every week. My husband wasn’t Jewish, and I always envied couples who were there sitting together – wishing my husband were there with me. And when I joined TBS the first time, I thought it was a very “clicky” and unfriendly place and hated it when no one greeted me and I sat alone.

But, I forced myself to come almost every week, because EVERY TIME I CAME, by the time the service was over, I felt much better than when I walked in the front door. Maybe it was the music, or the sermon, or a special prayer...or a combination of many things? Did I feel closer to God? Who knows? I didn’t even know if I believed in God. Was it a “spiritual” experience? Probably, but what is spiritual for one person isn’t necessarily so for the next person. “Spirituality” can only be defined by each individual. With rare exception, I experienced something during that hour that I didn’t experience during all the other waking hours of that week. Even if I sat alone, by the time I left the temple after the service, I knew I had made the right decision to come, sit alongside Jews who had made the same decision I did, and do what Jews do around the world every week. I felt better, sort of uplifted.

Continued Message from President Fay Henning-Bryant

We live in the diaspora. The metro Phoenix West Valley is even more of a diaspora than other major US cities that have large Jewish populations concentrated in certain areas of their cities. We have to work at being Jewish! We have to make a conscious decision to choose to actively be a part of the Jewish people-to do the same thing on Friday night or Saturday morning that Jews around the world are doing at the same time.

Those of us who receive this newsletter every month get it because we have made a conscious decision to pay dues to be a member of a synagogue. Our Jewishness obviously means something special to us to do that. To pay money to be a Jew! So, if you haven't come to services in a while, I urge you to come and join us for a few Fridays. If you don't know anyone, come anyway – TBS isn't that "clicky" place it was when I joined the first time. Our new members comment about what a friendly place this is. Our Rabbi has a sense of humor and loves meeting and engaging with people. There is a sense of caring and informality but yet a respect for the sacred. Hopefully when you leave after the service and the Oneg, where we always have food, you will feel that this hour or so that you invested in Jewishness and the sacred provided you with an opportunity to experience something special and meaningful than if you had stayed home.

In May, we learned that the Jewish Federation of Buffalo (New York) had organized several efforts to support the East Buffalo community that was without the means to buy groceries in their community, when the Topps supermarket was closed, due to the horrific shooting in East Buffalo. By contacting the Executive Director of the Buffalo Jewish Federation, we obtained the name of a food bank that was working closely with this community. We announced this need at Friday night services in a couple of Weekly Bulletins, and as a result, some of our members stepped up and made donations to the FeedMore Foodbank. The following members generously made donations that totaled $652.00. Warren & Fern Bentkover, Bonnie & Denny Cutler, Helene Fox, Sharon & Lou Gadless, Vicki Goldstein, Bonnie Gomez, Jonathan & Marlene Green, Kay Grossman, Fay Henning-Bryant, Pam & Dave Katz, Nan & Rich Lieber, Bonnie Logmire, Benita Melnikoff, Marilyn & Alan Meyerowitz, Joan Nappen, Joan & Jerry Rosen, Geraldine Travis.

Many people contribute to the Flower Bouquet & Food Basket Funds “in memory of ”, but did you know that you can also contribute to these funds “in honor of” to help someone special celebrate a birthday, anniversary or any kind of simcha?

This is Sisterhood's major fundraiser. We use it to make donations to local food banks, but the major portion is given to our temple whenever a need arises, such as a copier, a computer and new kitchen appliances like a refrigerator and dishwasher. We are always there to help. Please help us by contributing.

Temple Beth Shalom Gratefully acknowledges all those that have contributed to our Brick Fundraiser Project

TREE OF LIFE

Consistent with our belief, our Tree of Life, on the Lobby wall next to the office, commemorates simchas and life cycle events, such as special birthdays, anniversaries, or Bar & Bat Mitzvahs with an engraved leaf. We look forward to members making a contribution to the Temple and honoring their loved ones or commemorating an event by adding a leaf to the tree in their name.

Each leaf is a $200.00 donation to the synagogue. This is a lovely way to commemorate a special milestone for your family, and support Temple Beth Shalom.

Please call Nan Rubin-Lieber at 623-933-1412, or the Temple office at 623-977-3240, to order your special leaf.
